Expansion in Viet Nam War Is Lessening

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — High U.S. authorities said today chances of a major expansion of the Vietnamese war appear to be lessening.

They reported that there had been no sign so far, of mass troop movements in Communist China or North Viet Nam. And they said there had been no evidence that Communist sea forces or planes were hunting targets.

President Johnson had near-unanimous support from Congress to employ a flexible military response if necessary to meet any new Communist thrust in Southeast Asia.

By votes of 414 to 0 and 88 to 2, respectively, the House and Senate Friday approved a joint resolution that "approves and supports" Johnson's determination "to take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression."

South Viet Nam, focal point of the anti-Communist struggle in Southeast Asia, remained under virtual martial law, imposed Friday by Premier Nguyen Khanh.

Redeployment of beefed-up U.S. strength in the South Pacific continued. A squadron of super-jet fighters, newly arrived from the United States, stopped briefly in Hawaii, then headed for the Western Pacific and Southeast Asia.

At the United Nations the Security Council invited both North and South Viet Nam to take part in debate on the situation in Southeast Asia.

While optimistic that the situation would continue to ease, U.S. officials did not rule out the possibility that it might take the communists a while to deploy their forces if they planned a major move.

The feeling here was that the North Vietnamese had been taken by surprise when U.S. planes bombed four torpedo bases and an oil refinery Wednesday as retaliation for Communist attacks on two U.S. destroyers.

The resolution passed by Congress had been requested by Johnson to show bipartisan support for his Viet Nam stance.

In the House, although there were no votes against it, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., voted present, and Rep. Eugene B. Siler, R-Ky., was paired against the measure and said he would have voted no had he been present.

The two senators who opposed the resolution were Democrats Wayne Morse of Oregon and Ernest Gruening of Alaska, both persistent critics of administration policy in Southeast Asia.

"All Viet Nam is not worth the life of a single American boy," Gruening told the Senate. Johnson hailed the congressional action as "a demonstration to all the world of the unity of all Americans."

School District Procedure Ruling

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A 1963 act setting up procedure for forming a new school district, dissolving an old one or annexing an existing one appears to be constitutional, the attorney general's office said today.

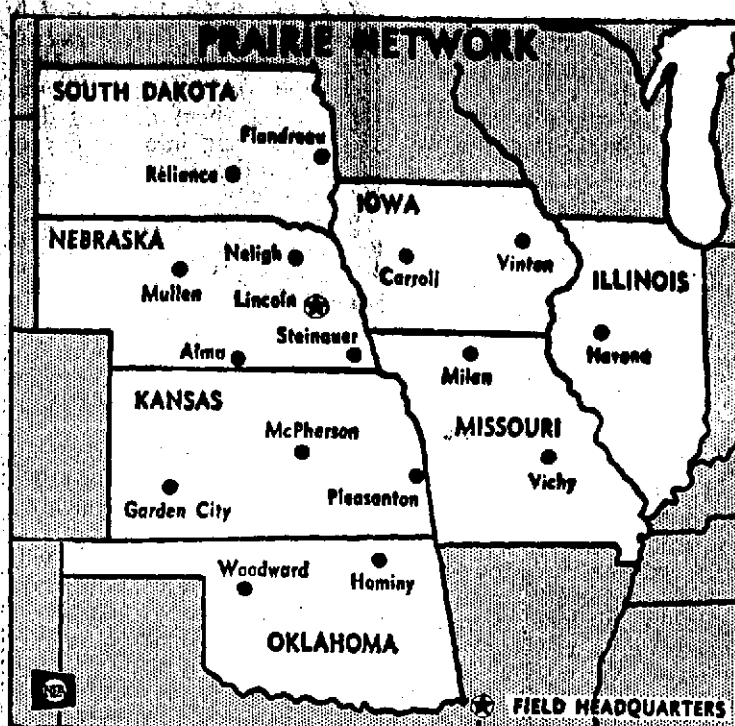

The ruling which went to Fay Jacobs, Franklin County school supervisor, said the act requires that the county school supervisor call a public hearing when a petition for district changes is presented.

The county board of education must determine the sufficiency of the petition at a hearing and may grant the request of petitioners for creating, dissolving or annexing districts.

The opinion said appeals from the county board's actions could be filed in circuit court. The office also issued opinions that L.G. Clem, alderman at Yellville, can serve as an election judge only if he is not a candidate in the election, and that a uniform allowance paid to city employees at Pine Bluff is not part of the employee's salary, therefore cannot be legally classed as actual compensation on which retirement pensions are based.

Goldwater Asks Advice of Colleagues

By WALTER MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater today asked his congressional colleagues for advice on issues and strategy in the coming campaign.

Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona and Sen. John Tower of Texas gave that report after Goldwater spent an hour at a closed-door breakfast meeting with GOP Senate and House members.

About 100 were invited to the session, second in two days. Goldwater aides said most of them were on hand.

Among them was Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York, who has said he cannot as of now support the national ticket. Keating left with no comment as to whether the session had affected his views.

"It was a cordial, personal meeting," he told newsmen. Rhodes said Goldwater plans to open his presidential campaign formally at Prescott, Ariz., on Sept. 4.

Meanwhile, Goldwater's press secretary, Tony Smith, said the senator has written a letter to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon explaining his declaration at the national convention that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice."

Smith said Nixon apparently wrote Goldwater asking for clarification of that statement. He said the former vice president is expected to make the letter public in New York.

Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the vice-presidential nominee, said after the meeting he thinks both Keating and Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania eventually will support the ticket.

Tower said Goldwater indicated "a desire to get some consensus of thinking" from Republican members of the House and Senate on campaign issues.

He said Goldwater told the congressmen he intended to "cover the country as thoroughly as possible" during the presidential campaign.

Rhodes said Goldwater and Miller declared "they intend to have a united party behind them if it's at all possible to do so."

Thursday, Goldwater spurned the support of people who act "in a violent way against law and order."

Trouble Attempt, Faubus Declares

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Thursday that the National Urban League's request that President Johnson end discrimination in 24 states, including Arkansas, may be an attempt to start trouble. "These people making the demands may be more interested in creating controversy than in obtaining service for Negroes," Faubus said.

The league asked Johnson to end discrimination at the Mississippi Pacific Hospital and St. Vincent Infirmary, both at Little Rock; state tuberculosis sanitariums at Booneville and Alexander; and public housing at Camden, Fort Smith, Texarkana, North Little Rock and Little Rock.

Anti-Poverty Bill on Brink of Passing

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House pushed President Johnson's antipoverty bill to the verge of passage Friday night but was forced by a technicality to delay a final vote until today.

After a 228-190 preliminary vote all but sealed a stunning victory for Johnson, opponents demanded a printed copy of the bill, including amendments adopted only minutes earlier.

Such a demand can always be made, but rarely is. Sometimes the houses recesses until a copy can be provided. This time it decided to wait until today.

The House almost never meets on Saturday and members are accustomed to long weekends off.

The Democrats were short of members at one point Friday and opponents of the high priority administration bill almost succeeded in a bold maneuver to kill it.

Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., offered a motion to "strike the enacting clause" — in effect, kill the bill. Republicans, who had been waiting outside the chamber, rushed in and combined with Southern Democrats, succeeded in carrying the Smith motion by a 170-135 non-record vote.

The leadership was able to demand a roll call vote to ratify the action, however, and during the time that took, enough Democrats who support the President were rounded up to defeat the motion 225 to 198.

The 228-190 vote that followed came on the actual bill, but under House rules it was being considered in the form of an amendment adopted to the original House measure. After its approval as an amendment it must be passed as a bill, and that is the vote that was put off until today.

Except for one amendment put in over the opposition of the bill's supporters, the version awaiting final passage is closely parallel to the Senate version. The exception is an amendment that would require a loyalty oath from all those participating in the various programs authorized by the bill. It was proposed by Rep. John Bell Williams D-Miss., and approved by a nonrecord vote of 144-112.

New Tribal Rhythm Is Being Taught

By KENNETH L. WHITING

Bo, Sierra Leone (AP) — A modern day music man brought here by the Peace Corps is causing a rhythmic revolution in this West African land.

There was plenty of primitive tribal rhythm but only two organized bands—the army and the police—when James C. Polite arrived less than a year ago. He organized a 40-piece school band, is planning a drill team, tutoring other teachers in music, and launching a widespread music curriculum.

The short, plump Negro hustles around this up-country town on a motorbike. At 48 he is older than most Peace Corpsmen.

He has made such an impact that Sierra Leone officials recently asked the Peace Corps for four additional bandmasters "with Jim Polite's qualifications and if possible his ability."

Polite feels the same way about Sierra Leone, a former British colony in Africa. It's about the size of South Carolina.

He composed a song "Sir Milton Margai" to honor the late prime minister; and an ode to Catholic Training College which is his headquarters here. He writes some tunes in a type of pidgin English called Krio and plans a more elaborate piece of music based on local rhythms and titled "African Boogie."

He says: "It's O.K. to bring U.S. musicians like Louis Armstrong or Cozy Cole over here to entertain but what do these people have left after the visitors have gone? I think it's better in the long run if Sierra Leoneans can entertain themselves with music."

He came here with a varied background as a music teacher starting when he gave informal lessons to friends in Civilian Conservation Corps camps in the 1930s. He studied music at Dillard University in New Orleans and at Chicago Vandercook College and at Roosevelt University. Polite organized 15 elementary and high school bands and spent three years in U.S. Army musical groups.

"They told me when I came here that these people didn't want music — that they were just hungry for basic schooling and not songs," said Polite. "But I was quickly convinced a music program would work and that there was a real need for it."

Coffelt to Take Case to High Court

By J.C. TILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A test of Arkansas election laws on the qualifying of independent candidates is headed toward the state Supreme Court.

Circuit Judge Guy Amsler Jr. refused Thursday to qualify attorney Kenneth Coffelt as a candidate on the basis of a petition containing 75 signatures.

Coffelt, who seeks to oppose Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett as an independent in the November general election, maintained that a requirement of 46,214 signatures for qualification as an independent is discriminatory.

The case hinges on whether an election law requiring only 50 signatures on petitions by independents stands up in the face of 1955 and 1957 legislations.

It started when Secretary of State Kelly Bryant, as secretary of the State Board of Election Commissioners, refused to accept Coffelt's petition with 75 signatures.

Bryant, defendant in a subsequent suit by Coffelt, testified at a hearing before Amsler Thursday that he did so on the basis of a ruling by Bennett.

Bryant was represented by Jerry Patterson and William Patton, assistants to Bennett. Coffelt maintained at the hearing that Act 205 of 1957 says an independent may qualify with a petition of 50 to 1,000 signatures.

Patterson countered that this section applied only to persons filing for an office where a vacancy existed. Bryant testified that no vacancy exists in the Democratic nomination for the attorney general's post.

Coffelt argued that the 1957 law is in conflict with Act 352 of 1955, providing that independent candidates must present petitions bearing signatures equivalent to 15 per cent of the total vote cast in the previous gubernatorial election. It was from this law that the figure 46,214 was derived.

Patterson said the two laws exist collaterally; Coffelt that one repealed the other.

Coffelt also claimed that the 1957 act reinstated Act 30, of 1891, which required 50 to 1,000 signatures.

Coffelt maintained that never in the history of Arkansas has a candidate been forced to submit 46,000 signatures, that such action in effect eliminated the chances of independents to run and therefore violated the equal rights clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Patterson maintained that the 15 per cent rule is no more burdensome. "But I'm not willing to say it's a denial of an independent candidate's right to file," he added.

He ruled the 1955 law requiring the 15 per cent valid. Coffelt said appeal to the Supreme Court would be immediate and he would ask that his name be placed on the ballot if he won a favorable ruling.

UN Council Will Hear Both Sides

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats predicted today the U.N. Security Council would "invite" both North and South Viet Nam to take part in debate on North Vietnamese attacks on American warships and U.S. retaliation.

Council President Sivert A. Nielsen of Norway suspended debate so he could sound out delegates to the 11-nation body on the proposal to hear representatives of the two Vietnamese governments. Nielsen said he believed he could convene the council again Friday to report results.

If the Communist North and pro-Western South both send spokesmen, it will probably produce a heated debate on the roles the United States, North Viet Nam and Red China play in South Viet Nam's war.

The debate opened Wednesday at the request of the United States, which asked for an urgent council meeting to consider "the serious situation created by deliberate attacks of the Hanoi (North Viet Nam) regime on United States naval vessels in international waters."

The question of Vietnamese participation in the debate was brought up by Soviet Delegate Platon D. Morozov, who introduced a resolution to have the council seek information from North Viet Nam relating to the U.S. complaint and to invite North Vietnamese representatives to take part in the debate.

Chief U.S. Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson said the United States had no objection to inviting North Vietnam but the South Vietnamese should be asked too. Morozov said the United States could "do without the assistance of these flunkies," but he agreed to pull back his resolution and let Nielsen draw one up.

Stevenson charged that attacks on U.S. destroyers by North Vietnamese torpedo boats in the Gulf of Tonkin on Sunday and Tuesday were part of a plan to subjugate all Southeast Asia. Stevenson said the U.S. counterblow Wednesday was "limited and measured" to discourage further acts of aggression. He said President Johnson had given him explicit instructions to assure the council that the U.S. mission in Asia is "peace."

He said the United States had acted in self-defense and in accord with the U.N. charter. Morozov denounced the U.S. air raids as "acts of aggression."

"The expansionist aims of the United States for extending the war in Southeast Asia are fraught with danger for the area," he said.

Roger W. Jackling of Britain said the United States had the right to act "to prevent the recurrence of attacks on her ships."

Wilderness Bill Before Congress

World Today
By BENNETT WOLFE

WASHINGTON (AP) — After years of consideration and controversy, Congress is about to agree on something called the wilderness bill.

What's it all about?

It is a bill that would provide for preservation of a vast system of wilderness areas in as nearly their natural state as possible. Soothing of men's souls is one of the objectives.

The stated purpose is to keep for present and future generations areas of unspoiled, pristine wilderness, unmarred by roads, buildings, automobiles or motorboats.

Systems of trails would provide access for hikers, mountain climbers, hunters, fishermen and — as Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, once put it in Senate debate — for "all those who find, in high and lonely places, a refreshment of the spirit and life's closest communion with God."

Only minor differences remain to be smoothed out between bills passed by both Houses and Senate before Congress sends the Wilderness Act of 1964 to the White House for President Johnson's certain approval.

What lands would be included in the system? Initially, more than 9 million acres of National Forest lands, principally in Wyoming, Montana, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Washington, Oregon, Arizona, Colorado, Minnesota and Nevada. An additional 5 million acres, including some forest lands in North Carolina and New Hampshire, may be added later.

Since the Forest Service, an agency of the Agriculture Department, now has control of the areas, why is the legislation needed? Because, in the words of Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., "such areas now enjoy only the protection of the secretary of agriculture, who at some future time could, by the stroke of the pen, remove all or part of such areas" from what protection they now enjoy.

What about commercial activities in the wilderness areas? Provision is made for commercial services necessary "for activities which are proper for realizing the recreational or other wilderness purposes."

Who opposed the legislation? Such groups as livestock grazers, minerals prospectors, miners and loggers. They feared loss of rights to use of federal lands.

What of their rights under the Wilderness Act? Provision is made for such activities under controls designed to keep them compatible with preservation of the wilderness character.

What about the cost? The legislation does not call for any money. It would simply give statutory protection to existing wilderness areas, establishing a national policy to be carried out by existing agencies. Congress would have the power, however, to vote future appropriations for acquisition of privately owned lands within the boundaries of any wilderness area.

War Threat to Be a Major Campaign Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater has told Republican congressional candidates that foreign policy — and Viet Nam — will be the major campaign issue if President Johnson backs off from his Southeast Asia stand.

Newsmen were barred from Friday night's meeting in a hotel banquet room, but reporters outside the door heard the GOP's presidential nominee say of Johnson:

"If he doesn't continue what he has started to do, then I can assure him that not only Viet Nam but all of his foreign policy is going to be the major issue of the campaign."

Goldwater noted that some of his political foes have accused him of being "trigger happy." But the Arizona conservative, according to a Republican who heard the speech, said a decision to order naval air strikes against North Viet Nam's PT boat fleet would neutralize that charge.

"The Republican party has not led this country into a war this century. We are the party of peace," the senator was heard to say.

Republicans have always preserved the peace, he said, because they understand the use of power.

Newsmen were able to hear only part of Goldwater's remarks before the house detective ordered them away.

Earlier in the day, GOP National Chairman Dean Burch disclosed that pollsters were being used to sample public sentiment to help chart Goldwater's campaign.

Goldwater said he intends to launch his campaign formally with a speech at Prescott, Ariz., Sept. 4.

The vice presidential nominee, Rep. William E. Miller, kicks off his campaign the next day in his upstate New York congressional district.

Burch said Goldwater's national campaign will follow the format of his successful primary campaign in California: "big meetings, big television and pretty big issues."

After Goldwater's campaign opening in Arizona, Burch said, the senator may follow up with a foray into California.

"If you don't carry California," Burch said, "you have to carry three states you hadn't planned on."

Consumer vs Government

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The president of the Illinois Agricultural Association said here Wednesday that the major U.S. farm question is whether consumers or government will determine agriculture's future.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television producers who scurry to make deadlines could take a lesson from Walt Disney. He's three-fifths finished with his programs for the coming season, which doesn't start until Sept. 20.

The 1964-65 season is a special one for Disney — his 10th. His shows, first on ABC and now in color on NBC, have always reflected taste, quality and variety. The selection next year will continue to be varied, with accent on original, multichannel films.

"Of the 25 shows, we'll have about five nature films, two feature movies, two cartoon shows and the rest three and four-part story films," said Walt.

"There's a reason for doing films in three or more parts. We put more time and bigger budgets into our shows than most television producers do."

"We believe in getting more action and bigger backgrounds for our stories, not just shoot them against a wall. We can justify the expense when we use sets for three or four shows. For

Television and Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — All around the Hollywood studios, in this comedy year, television actors are playing their scenes for laughs. But on the back lots of MGM and Universal-Revue, World War II is still being refought under the sizzling California sun.

"Combat" ABC's drama, season will start its third season battling from the Normandy beachheads to the Maginot Line, a more leisurely trip than the real fighting men made some 20 years back.

At busy Revue, a portion of the battle of the Bulge is being recreated at one end of a small artificial lake. The other end is a snow-covered Alaska scene, part of a motion picture in the works.

The war show in progress is called "Operation Griet" based on a real episode of the war when specially-trained, English-speaking German saboteurs were dressed in GI uniforms and sent behind the allied lines to make serious mischief. It will be one program of NBC's returning "Suspense Theatre" anthology series on Thursday nights.

A muddy road had been created beside the lake and actors in grimy uniforms were resting — like real, tired soldiers in the shade of fake trees. One, particularly dust-covered and sporting a three-day beard, arose. It proved to be Robert Goulet, the handsome young baritone, who is making his TV acting debut in the episode.

Fess Parker, making an easy character shift from Davy Crockett to Daniel Boone this year, was nipped on the neck Wednesday by a bear cub. The scene involved was one where the intrepid backwoodsman was "grinning down" — staring down — the animal instead of shooting it. The minor wound was treated, disguised with makeup and Parker kept on working.

instance, I had a whole Philadelphia street in the '90s built for 'Gallagher,' a story about a newspaper copy boy written by Richard Harding Davis."

Walt doesn't like to be pressed by deadlines. Hence 15 of the year's product of 24 hours is filmed.

"And we've got nature photographers out in the field shooting subjects for 1965 and 1966," he added.

As host of the series, Walt must spend some of his time as an actor. "There's some ham in all of us," he admitted. "I can shoot about five introductions in a day, and I find the work fun. It gives me a chance to get away from everything else for a day."

He tries to work animals into his act, and the results are often unexpected. For the lead-in to the show of "Nicki, Wild Dog of the North," he put a bunch of baby dogs, cats, guinea pigs, possums and skunks in a cage to show young animals don't harm each other as long as they're not hungry. Someone suggested adding chicks and ducklings, and this was done.

Walt was in the middle of a take when he looked down to see a kitten with a chick in its mouth and a puppy trying to make off with a duckling. He rescued the victims just in time.

AMESBURY, Mass. (AP) — Two dogs and two cats have a trust fund of more than $50,000. Annie E. Webster, 84, of Amesbury, who died June 8, directed in her will that the bulk of her $68,000 estate, after $14,000 in charitable bequests, should be placed in trust for pet.

The will directed that the dogs and cats be permitted to live the rest of their lives in her home, and that they are to be given "a proper burial when they die."

Many Church Members Come by Boat

By BILL HUDSON
MONTICELLO, Ky. (AP) — The Rev. Delmar Rodgers sometimes finds his congregation in play clothes.

But, it's only natural because many of the worshippers come by boat.

Once a month, the young minister of the Monticello Christian church conducts a 30-minute Sunday evening service at nearby Lake Cumberland.

The Rev. Mr. Rodgers describes his waterside service as an effort to unite pleasure and Christianity. His pulpit generally is the deck of a boat.

"A lot of people in our congregation have boats. Rather than let the boats become a wedge between them and their faithfulness to the church, we have the service at the lake," the minister said.

"Let's say its accommodating. Those with boats feel they're putting them to good use."

The service is sponsored by the young people of the church. It began last summer and attendance has averaged about 100 persons.

Dress is informal though the minister explains "We ask for some measure of dignity. The people definitely are on vacation. Some stay on their boats during the services."

There are boats of all descriptions, usually including five or six houseboats.

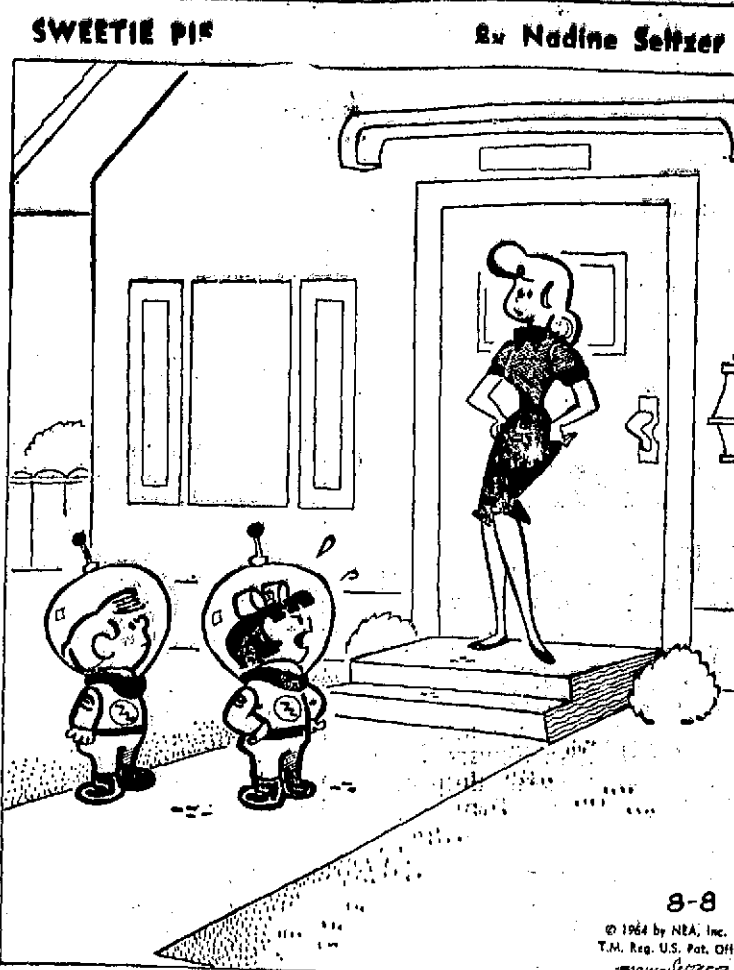

Rodgers has been in this south-central Kentucky town of 3,000 population for about one and one-half years. He came from Rockford, Ill. Previous pastorates were in large cities, including Chicago.

His lakeside services are limited to 30 minutes of music and a brief sermon.

For music, "We use local talent and quartets such as we can find."

The site of the service also is accessible by road and is near a popular spot called Conley Bottom.

"It's a good place for swimming and boating," Rodgers explained. "Folks have been congregating in that area for a long time. It's a natural place to go."

"How do you expect us to conquer space when we can't even leave the front yard?"

A SON'S THOUGHTS

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I can't get that Father's Day column out of my mind. This is for the mother who sent her 19-year-old son's letter in which he said "If I turn out to be a father like my dad I wish somebody would shoot me."

Only when your son has sons of his own will he appreciate what his father has done for him. I assume your son is not paying his own way through college. Few sons do.

I had the same type of father. He never played ball with me. He never cuddled me when I was young. Never talked with me man-to-man. He never took me on trips either. But he worked every day. And he paid the bills. And he put food on the table and clothes on my back and shoes on my feet. And he quietly did without himself.

I used to feel resentment too. But now I have sons of my own and realize that there are many ways of showing love. And my father loved me no less for his inability to show it. One day that son will live to eat his words.

OLDER AND WISER
Dear Abby: The letter on Father's Day from the boy who was disappointed in his father bothered me. Considering the thousands of boys who have had to grow up without fathers I think this young man is lucky to have had even a part-time father. At least he's made a home for his family and has paid the bills. If the boy fears his younger brother will suffer from the absence of a father's love and guidance why doesn't he spend more time being the older brother? Older brothers are usually adored and looked up to by the younger ones.

I have four sons from 9 to 16. Their father has been in the state mental hospital since the oldest boy was eight years old so it is almost as though they had no father at all. His mind is gone and he will be there the rest of his life. Yet the boys keep busy help each other help me and I have never once heard them complain about how tough it is to be without a father.

MOTHER OF FOUR
Dear Abby: I read the letter from the college son to his mother criticizing his father. The boy sounded like an over-protected spoiled sniveling brat just looking for points against probably a hard-working long suffering devoted introverted father. Who sent this kid to college? My husband is a quiet man and our three sons adore him in a quiet way. They feel no necessity to drool over one another. One son is a newspaper man and the other two are engineers, and they all married wonderful girls. The boys turned out to be the kind fathers brag about, but my husband never took the boys hunting or fishing. In the summer he either was going to college (he is a school teacher) or working to supplement our income. He never wrote them a letter in his life. Yet they loved and respected each other and enjoyed a fine relationship. What we need today is more strong silent men who quietly rule their homes. Then no son will hope to be shot if he isn't taken fishing or to Disneyland. Honestly!

WICHITA WIFE
Dear Abby: Apropos the letter from the college boy who condemned his father for not being a "good" father:

I am willing to bet that if you were to ask one hundred successful family men if their fathers ever played ball with them, took them on trips, or sat down and talked "man-to-man" with them, ninety-five would have to say no.

Faubus Gets Poor in Fight With Rocky

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Winthrop Rockefeller spent much of last Tuesday afternoon shaking hands in downtown Waldo in 110-degree heat.

If Arkansas needed an indication that this fall's gubernatorial campaign will be a hot and hectic as the primary race was quiet and uninteresting, this was it.

Neither heat, humidity nor a broken-down bus stayed Rockefeller from his appointed rounds. "I just mop my brow and go on," he told a newsmen.

And he stalked down the main street, thrusting out his hand and saying, "I'm Win Rockefeller, candidate for governor."

The other candidate, Gov. Orval E. Faubus, was somewhere mapping strategy for a campaign which promises as much color and rough-and-tumble politics as the Carl Bailey-Homer Adkins Sid McMath-Jack Holt and Faubus-Francis Cherry races of other decades.

Faubus, unwearied by the dust-laden primary campaign in Arkansas history, has indicated he won't start his race against Rockefeller until about Sept. 1. By then the Squire of Petit Jean will have a two-month head start.

In a normal year, Faubus could count on the organization which carried him through the primary to take him on into November. But he hardly had an organization for the primary, in which he easily defeated Rockefeller.

Instead of the plush, busy headquarters Faubus had maintained his last three campaigns, the governor settled this time for a few rooms on the mezzanine of the Grady Manning Hotel, the same space used in 1962 by Dale Alford, one of his opponents.

Faubus did not stomp. He made only one television appearance. His campaign was, in fact, no campaign at all.

Why was he so confident? His opponents were political unknowns; but it was not as simple as that. Faubus knew that, for one of the rare times in Arkansas politics, not one of his foes had a working statewide organization; not one had any system of county organizations.

By contrast, Rockefeller is working to build an organization in each county, even in those which have cast no more than a handful of Republican votes through the years.

Faubus can be expected to take to the stump when he faces Rockefeller even though he has said the stump speech is almost a thing of the past. If he does, his aides will organize the rallies that were such an important factor in Arkansas politics before television and, indeed, right through the 1962 campaign.

It is on the stump that Faubus excels. He is not a spell-binding speaker, but he is a speaker with which an audience can readily identify. Colloquialisms, slight mispronunciation of words, simple, backwoods similes and metaphors make him seem more like a neighbor than a governor.

Rockefeller, too, is an accomplished speaker. As chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission and a Republican Party leader, he has probably made more speeches in Arkansas during the last 10 years than any man except Faubus.

But his talks have been to business leaders, civic organizations, chambers of commerce, industrial development groups. He has not spent a great deal of time looking into the eye of the man in the street and talking his language.

Faubus has done this each two years since 1952. He did it as an underdog in his race against Cherry. He did it despite segregationist hecklers in his race against Jim Johnson. He did it with support from the same hecklers in the 1958 campaign.

And he did it in the relatively calm races of 1960 and 1962. He has 10 years of experience in asking for votes.

Faubus has indicated he will try to play the role of a poor country boy cast against a foreign multimillionaire. Rockefeller cannot deny his New York heritage, but he is expected to stress that he is an Arkansas by choice, that he loves the state as an adopted son as strongly and sincerely as a native son ever could.

An out-of-state writer who interviewed both men recently wrote that their appearances belie these roles. He said Faubus, dressed in a dark suit and red tie, looked more like a rich easterner than Rockefeller, who was in shirt-sleeves and wearing a cowboy hat and boots when interviewed.

Rockefeller has campaigned in shirt-sleeves, boots and hat. Faubus generally stumps in a suit, but he has peeled down to his shirt and loosened his tie when the temperature and the talking got torrid.

Face to face debates — such as Bailey and Adkins staged in 1940 — are unlikely. Faubus has consistently declined to debate, contending that he did not want to pull in an audience to hear his opponent.

Rockefeller, a fair hand at pulling audiences himself, may not ask for debates.

But he will stump, and he will be better equipped for it — if he can keep his bus running — than any candidate ever was. The bus is equipped with a speaking platform, offices and all the other campaign necessities. The only thing like it in recent campaigns is the converted house trailer used by Alford, in 1962.

Moonshiner, 93, Is Arrested

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Federal, state and Kern County authorities raided the home of 93-year-old Otis Sledge Thursday to climax a three-month investigation.

They found 15 gallons of moonshine corn whisky and 250 empty bottles.

Sledge was jailed on a charge

Regional Babe Ruth Meet Set

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP) — The Southwest Regional Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament opens here Monday night.

Teams from New Orleans, Tulsa, Rosewell, N.M., Beaumont, Tex., Fort Smith, Paragould and an unpledged Texas championship team will compete for the title.

Fort Smith is the Arkansas Babe Ruth champion. Paragould, as host team, did not have to compete for a tournament berth.

The double elimination tournament will end Saturday.

Tax Injunction Is Appealed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Newton County Chancery Court ruling denying an injunction against levying a tax to finance construction of a county hospital has been appealed to the state Supreme Court.

The tax was approved Dec. 10 in a special election by a vote of 682 to 613. A. H. Raney and Welden Cleggett filed suit against County Judge Roy Raulston, questioning whether proceeds from the building tax could be used to equip the hospital.

They also challenged completeness of the hospital plans and cost estimates of the building.

Chancellor Ernie E. Wright denied their plea for an injunction April 1.

Hot Springs Man Shot to Death

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — John Rex Apollo, 51, of Hot Springs, was shot to death at the home of one of his neighbors northwest of the Hot Springs city limits Wednesday night.

Sheriff Duffie Searcy said Mitchell Abbott, 42, at whose home the shooting occurred, was held on an open charge in connection with the death.

Searcy said the shooting occurred after an argument.

James Foundation Out of Existence

NEW YORK (AP) — The James Foundation announced it has given away its last $96 million and will go out of existence Dec. 31.

The fund was founded in the will of Arthur Charles James, who once owned one-seventh of all the railroad mileage in the United States.

He died in 1941, leaving $26 million to the fund, which was to operate for 25 years unless its trustees ended it sooner.

Some of it was invested in such stocks as International Business Machines and American Natural Gas.

It grew and grew. Over the years he fund has given away $42 million, in addition to the $96,350,000 in the final grants. The last gifts went to 92 institutions in amounts ranging from $100,000 to $5.5 million.

of selling and possessing illegal whisky.

A Short Short Story

BEWITCHED

By Esther Lacy

They had just opened one of near my room, a slightly damp if highly mechanized store lined with many washing and drying soap powder, detergents, bleaches, clothes softener, cigarettes, candy and soda.

The few occasions I've had the time to take my laundry there, I've enjoyed myself watching what truly silly creatures women are. They put on quite a show. The gals gather their various big and little boxes of chemicals as each store intensely at her clothes tumbling inside the washing machine, adding a pinch of this and that. They're like witches watching a brewing cauldron. They seem actually hypnotized by their spinning laundry, act as solemn as a mad scientist on the verge of discovering a new atom. It's really funny.

Take the last time I was there. It was morning, I'd been working overtime in the lab all night, and there was this dark-haired, youngish girl, rather cute in a bulky red sweater and tight black stretch pants. She had a number of jelly jars of various liquids on top of her washing machine, kept adding a pinch of this and that to the wash. She was so intent I had to chuckle. Turning, she asked coldly, "Something funny?"

"You are. Your wash is full of suds and you're adding bleach. That's wrong, of course, the bleach and the soap counteract each other. Wait until the suds have been rinsed away, then add bleach."

She actually seemed to bristle, but her eyes snapped with anger that, on her, was rather attractive. Here was a chick that would take nothing off any man. No mere male was going to tell her anything about the way to get the best results from an automatic laundry.

"Is that so? And what makes you such a big laundry expert?"

"I'm not actually, but I do happen to be a chemist."

"Oh. And is that the way your wife told you to do the wash, add the bleach during the rinse?"

"It happens I'm not married."

"Well, well, washing advice from a confirmed bachelor! You'll be in a TV soap commercial next!" she said, her sarcasm annoying me. But I noticed that old gleam appear in her big eyes when I said I was a bachelor. "I'm not a chemist, merely a tired secretary on her day off, but I'll give you a few of my laundry secrets."

She added a few drops of some cloudy liquid from one of her jars to the wash. "For example, this is salt water."

"Are you nuts? Salt will only clog the soap action."

"You think so, chemist? My mother washed clothes by hand for years, she always used a pinch of salt and her clothes came out clean and sweet smelling. Another few hint—you should turn the knob to COLD on the first rinse."

"Indeed. Is that a scientific fact, Mrs. . . .?"

"Miss Smith. Wilma Smith. What do I call you, beside chemist?"

"Jake. Jake Evers. My name is actually Jackson Evers but I can't stand being called Jackson. It's pompous."

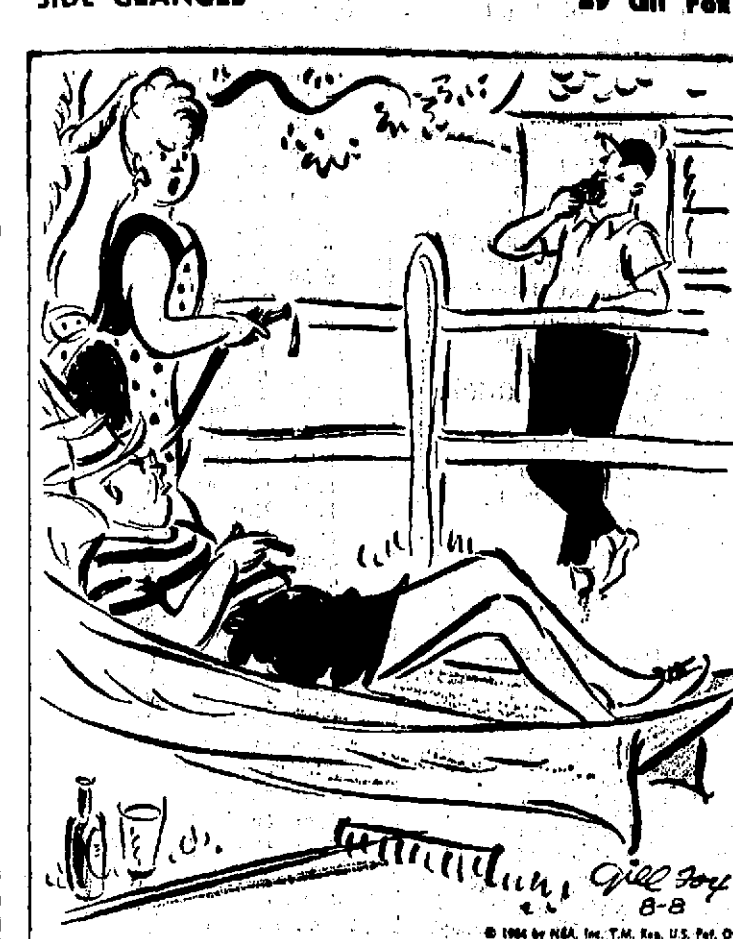

She laughed. "And of course you're not! It just happens, Jake, that switching from hot to cold water and then back to hot has a kind of shock effect on the dirt. Shakes it loose."

"Ha!" I told her, amused by her earnest ignorance.

"I'll make a small bet, a Men and Women Day and ground breaking ceremony August 9th, at 3 p.m. at 6th and Vine St. Emmet, Ark."

drink of soda, that my clothes will come out cleaner than yours," Wilma said.

"I never gamble. But if you're thirsty I'll buy you a soda. What flavor?"

"Cream, please."

After inserting a dime in the machine, I handed her the paper cup full of cream soda. She said, "Thanks, Jake. Like to share this with me?"

"Wilma, if I wanted a soda I'd have bought one for myself."

"Jake, you're a real live one," she said, turning away.

Angry, I lit my pipe and considered again how downright silly the female of the species is. I watched her bend over her machine, the rather exciting lines of her hips as she stared at her clothes, then added a dash of pink liquid, a sprinkle of white soap powder, followed by a bit of blue powder.

Wilma really did look for all the world like a modern witch (but a pretty one) making a spell.

Of course I never go to the laundromat anymore or watch Wilma do the laundry. But I suppose she's still adding a pinch of this and that to the washing machine, in the basement of my new house.

Sure, we're married, happily married. That was strong stuff she was brewing!

The Multitude

The Best Crowd to Follow... Is the Crowd Going to Church.

"You must not follow a multitude to do evil; nor go with a multitude to prevent justice," Exo. 23:2. What do you see in a crowd? Kings and tyrants have seen riot, rebellion and bloodshed. Jesus saw helpless, oppressed humanity as sheep not having a shepherd. Great crowds always mean some kind of hunger. Don't criticize them, try to understand and help them. When the multitude was hungry, Jesus fed them; when they were confused, He taught them; when sick, He healed them; when in trouble, He helped them. Help your friends by inviting them to church.
